What is a Focus Group?

A guided conversation where participants share thoughts, experiences, expectations and ideas

It’s not a test, and there are no right or wrong answers. Instead, we want to learn from you. It’s a collaborative space where your perspectives help us understand the problem space more deeply. We can surface patterns, friction points, disagreements and opportunities.

The ideas you share today will help shape design decisions, guide our priorities, and ensure the final product actually solves the right problems.

What to expect

- Facilitated group activities designed to share and gather insights, experiences, and ideas
- Shortly, we will send a link to Figjam, a white boarding tool we use to capture ideas and feedback.
- We'll do a quick introduction to the tool. No prior experience needed, it's simple and easy to use.
- We'll walk through a series of activities step by step as a group. We want to hear every diverse perspective. No one gets left behind!

Helpful Tips

- Use one sticky note per idea! It makes it easier to organize, sort, and analyze feedback.
- Be detailed in your responses, the more you share, the more impact your input will have.
- Spell out acronyms the first time you use them so everyone can follow along.
- There are no wrong answers, just be honest and open!
